SPEEDS TRIAL FOR 18 NAMED IN 'SHAKEDOWN'

Duffy Demands Early Action On State Officials Linked In Davey Collections.

JUDGE BARES ALL NAMES

Attorney General's Request For Pre-Primary Secrecy Rejected By Court.

COLUMBUS—Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy said today that he will demand an early trial for 18 state officials indicted on charges of soliciting money from state state civil service employes for Governor Davey's campaign fund.

Duffy, who directed a special grand jury investigation of campaign "shakedown" charges, said he was unwilling to wait until the fall term of Franklin county courts for their trials. If the court does not fix an early trial date, the attorney general said he would ask Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the Ohio supreme court to assign an out-of-town judge.

16 In Latest List.

Sixteen indictments were returned against 11 persons by the special grand jury yesterday as it recommended the strengthening of civil service regulations and broader powers for the civil service commission.

More than two weeks ago the grand jury indicted seven others on 13 counts.

Judge Henry L. Scarlett announced the names of those indicted late yesterday after refusing Duffy's request to keep them secret until after the Aug. 9 primary election.

In asking that the indictments not be made public, Duffy said yesterday that he did not wish to appear as a persecutor of candidates for office. Informed sources said that it was Duffy's desire that the charges not be revealed until after the Aug. 9 primary.

The law provides only for secrecy when "it is feared that the defendants will flee the jurisdiction of the court," Judge Scarlett said, adding that other jurists agreed with the decision to release the indictments "because of public interest."

Those indicted Friday and the charges:

Charles H. Hubbell, Cleveland, auditor in the unemployment compensation commission and several times an unsuccessful candidate for state political offices: Soliciting Virginia Shippley, a clerk in his division for a contribution of $135.

DENIES CHARGE

Manslaughter Defendant In Court For Plea Today.

Richard Strohminger, 19, Mansfield, driver of an automobile which figured in a fatal traffic accident on Lexington avenue June 11, pleaded innocent to a first-degree manslaughter indictment when arraigned in common pleas court this morning. He asked for an attorney before pleading to a second degree manslaughter indictment.

Judge C. H. Huston said he would appoint counsel and ordered him to appear at 9 a. m. Tuesday to answer to the second indictment returned three days ago. Strohminger was released after he obtained renewal of his $2,000 bond.

Young Strohminger was arrested shortly after the accident in which Miss Ada Kovachy, 48, Cleveland, sister of Municipal Judge Julius M. Kovachy of Cleveland, was killed.

On a plea of guilty to an indictment for pointing loaded firearms, Mark Sankey, of near Mansfield, was sentenced to six months in the Columbus workhouse and fined $200. Judge Huston suspended four months of the sentence and all of the fine.

38,000 Pieces of Veneer Wood in This Picture

This picture of the Rheims cathedral is made of 38,000 pieces of veneer wood, gathered from all parts of the world. This unusual piece of inlay has just been completed by Mack J. Esto (below) after three years of work. It is made in the natural colors of the wood, with the outlines made of ebony cut 1-65th of an inch wide. Esto's only working tool was a small, sharp pen knife. The inlays are glued to the background. Esto hopes to have his work exhibited at the New York World's fair next year.

HUGHES FLEES GOTHAM CROWDS

Shy Hero Of Round World Hop Hides At Friend's Estate After Huge Welcome.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Bewildered by the city's tremendous acclaim, which to his self-effacing nature was more unnerving than any hazard of the air, Howard Hughes found secret refuge today on the secluded Long Island estate of a friend.

The shy hero of the 'round-the-world flight fled in his big red automobile last night to the estate, near Oyster Bay, leaving his four companions at a hotel off Central park, to make their own week-end plans.

Hughes seemed stunned by the glory and homage paid him by New York yesterday as he was carried on the surging crest of cheers from the Battery up the narrow canyon of Broadway to city hall.

In his modest fashion he tried to submerge himself as merely one of 20 or more men, including his flying companions, technicians and army and navy advisers, who had made the remarkable achievement possible.

But New York would have none of it. The city took him to its heart. After the welcoming ceremonies were ended crowds followed him wherever he went and, finally in genuine bewilderment, Hughes sped to the seclusion of the Long Island estate.

At the hotel here, Thomas M. Thurlow and Harry P. M. Connor, navigators of the plane, and Richard Stoddart, the radio man, remained with their wives along

New Artillery Blasts Set Fire to Warship.

SHANGHAI—(U.P.)—New Chinese heavy artillery sank two Japanese navy motor boats and set fire to a warship off Hukow, an official Chinese communique asserted today.

It was asserted that additional artillery, and a fleet of fast motor torpedo boats, had arrived at Kiu-Kiang, where the Japanese were trying to drive their way up to Hankow, the provisional captal.

Japanese continued their mass airplane raids on Canton. "Psychological" attacks were made on the city last night.

'Paints' Picture of Famed Edifice With Knife, Wood

By JANE WILLIAMS

Mack Esto, 232 West Sixth street, operates a paint sprayer at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, but he dreams of high Gothic arches and of jeweled windows, and in his leisure hours he works with crayons, water colors and fine bits of wood from all parts of the world.

Esto has just completed a remarkable piece of fine inlay work, which he hopes to have displayed at the World's fair in New York City next year. It is a picture, made entirely from small bits of veneer wood, of the Rheims cathedral, most intricate and beautiful of all the Gothic architecture in Europe.

35 Kinds of Wood.

The picture is two by three feet and presents in minute detail the great cathedral in colors. Neither pen nor coloring of any kind was used and the rich colors, and the lights and shadows of the picture have been made entirely from colored woods. There is purple amaranthus, red tulip wood, white holly wood, three kinds of walnut for shadings, and black ebony for fine lines. Thirty-five kinds and colors of wood from ever corner and cranny of the world.

Esto began the picture three years ago when his imagination was caught by the pictures he had seen of the stately and classic cathedral. He wanted to reproduce the shadowed arches, the Gothic towers and fret of stone lace and white marble figures that adorn the facade.

He had won recognition while in school for his art work, especially

Map 'Sales Mean Jobs' Drive In Effort To Spur Business

Groundwork for a "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign in Mansfield was laid last night in an effort to stimulate business.

First steps were taken when Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants association, met with about 30 representatives of business and industry at the C. of C. and outlined plans for the business crusade.

The "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign, first started in Lincoln, Neb., is being conducted in a number of cities with excellent results, according to Lodde. One Lincoln, Neb., concern reported a 143 per cent increase of business.

The campaign stresses employment, for wherever sales increase, employment automatically increases. The psychology of the crusade is that every individual can help bring back prosperity by buying; that if 10 more autos are sold each day in 100 cities, it will mean 1,000 more autos to be turned out each day by manufacturers; it will mean work for steel workers and for fabric and rubber workers. In the end more jobs mean more sales and the round-robbin gains impetus until it spreads over the entire country.

The campaign in Mansfield will turn largely to sales people who will be urged to work harder to sell, and to citizens who need articles but have put off buying, Lodde said today.

At last night's meeting Lodde and Williams were instructed to name a general campaign committee, which will head the campaign and name sub-committees.

In other cities where the campaign is being conducted blue and white buttons on which is printed "Sales Mean Jobs", are worn by those taking part in the campaign and those who pledge to buy.

CUT-OFF STIRS UP NEW WAVE OF PROTESTS

WANT FLOOD PROTECTION

Say Major Complaint Isn't Low Offers For Land But Drainage Problem.

A new storm of protest was stirred up today among farmers in the Windsor district, northeast of Mansfield, after state highway officials announced that disputes over right-of-way easements would not delay completion of the Windsor cut-off on route 42.

Although only three of the protesting property owners had filed suite against the highway department today, at least a half dozen of them said they were "far from pleased" with the state's offer for their property and would fight for more money and protection for their farms from uncontrolled drainage

Asks "Reasonable Settlement."

Asserting that "I am not satisfied and won't be until I get a reasonable settlement for damage to my property and crops," Fred Hoskins, owner of a farm along the new route, said he didn't understand how the highway department could go ahead with the paving without obtaining approval of farmers in the section.

Another protest was registered by Walter Hout, who added that "just because some of us have not filed suits, that dosn't mean that we are satisfied with the offers made us by the highway department."

Despite the increasing protests, however, Boyd Wierman, state highway engineer in Richland county, predicted that agreements would be reached in the wrangles over the right-of-way for the new strip of highway.

Holds Injunction Unlikely.

"Even if one or more of the property holders sought to enjoin the highway department from starting operations on the project, the bond would be so high that it is unlikely it could be met," Wierman said.

He explained that the contract for paving the cut-off would be let in a few days, and after it is awarded, any person who files a suit to hold up the paving would have to provide bond covering

Indicating that the untangling of the complications over the estate might "go on for months," Judge Anderson continued the case indefinitely to permit the filing of additional answers and briefs pertaining to the rights of claimants to the estate.

More than 110 persons, the Good Samaritan hospital, Galion, and the Methodist Children's home at Worthington claim shares of the estate.

Ex-Utilities King Stricken

Samuel Insull . . . . . . his star fell.

* * * * *

Insull's Utility Reign Soared High, Fell Hard

Once Head of Four-Billion Dollar Empire, He Fled Country, Wound Up Life on a Pension.

CHICAGO—The star of Samuel Insull, who died of a heart attack in Paris today, blazed across the financial heavens to make him one of the richest men in the world and then sank faster than it arose.

Seldom in the world's history has a man fallen from the pinnacle of success so abruptly as did this man who came from the post of a humble British clerk to be America's outstanding utilities magnate.

Before his empire crashed about him Insull was a world figure, holding decorations from three foreign governments and countless honorary degrees and million dollar projects were his playthings. From that high estate he sank to comparative poverty.

He was born Nov. 11, 1859, in dingy rooms on Westminster road, London, near the banks of the Thames. His father worked at a trade, and was a law minister and temperance worker on the side. He gave his son a fairly good education in schools in London, Reading and Oxford.

He was a true Napoleon of modern business. He forced himself

Workers Ask More WPA Jobs, Charge Laxity In Work Relief

Charging city and county officials with laxity in providing work relief, representatives of the Workers Alliance backed by the Richland Industrial council asked them today to start additional WPA projects in the county to reduce the unemployment.

Meeting in the office of Mayor Claude M. Hunter with county commissioners and Relief Director Earl A. Nist, the delegation termed the relief level in Richland county as "slow starvation."

"The WPA program in Richland county is nothing to brag about," R. J. Chamberlin, president of the CIO council said as he reviewed a report the council had taken before J. L. Kelley, district WPA director at Columbus, several weeks ago

"At the present time there are about 700 men employed on two projects in the county while another 700 are certified but have no employment," he said.

"These men want work—not relief and you officials should be continually working for new projects in order to reduce the number of direct relief cases."

The delegates made no request for an increase in WPA wages. It was brought out at the meeting that hourly WPA pay was raised from 37½ cents to 50 cents an hour three weeks ago but that the maximum number of hours per month was reduced from 132 to 105, making the same maximum pay of $52.50 monthly.

City officials said they did not know of the increase until today.

Joseph Scanlon, president of Delano lodge, charged that Richland county relief standards were the third lowest in Ohio and that a broader work relief program

HEART ATTACK KILLS FORMER POWER KING

One-Time Financial Magnate Collapses While Buying Subway Train Ticket.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Physicians Find Him Dead On Arrival; Funeral To Be Held In London.

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—Samuel Insull, who made and lost countless millions and once ruled a utilities empire embracing half the United States, collapsed as he was buying a subway ticket in Paris today and died a few minutes later.

The fallen financial magnate, alone in the streets of Paris, was just about to book a 4½ cent passage on the "Metro" when he was seized with a heart attack. A policeman ran to his aid and rushed him to the Paul-Marmatton hospital, but the 79-year-old "four-billion dollar failure" was dead on arrival.

Wife Collapses.

Mrs. Insull rushed to the hospital when she heard the news and collapsed when told her husband was dead. Dr. Edmund Gros, noted Paris physician, was called to treat her, and after a short while she recovered sufficiently to talk to this correspondent.

"Mr. Insull had seemed to be in good health," she said between sobs.

"We took part in the July 14 celebrations (Bastille day) on Thursday. We saw the parade and watched the fireworks that night.

"It was a long and tiring day, and when evening came I asked Mr. Insull how he felt.

"'I'm fit as a fiddle,' he told me."

Nervous and distraught, Mrs. Insull jumped at the slightest sound. She had been put to bed by Dr. Gros immediately after her arrival at the hospital, but she was sitting up when she received this correspondent.

Aided by Interpreter.

A slight figure in a black dress, white shoes, gloves and hat, she was a picture of profound anguish.

Andrews Accepts As Administrator Of Wage-Hour Law

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Elmer F. Andrews, 48-year-old New York state industrial commissioner and former civil engineer, was entrusted today with the task of putting a "floor" under wages and a "ceiling" over hours of all industries engaged in interstate commerce.

Shortly after President Roosevelt had announced his apointment as administrator of the new wages and hours law last night in California, Andrews said that he had no hesitation about accepting the post. He promised that enforcement of the law "in the beginning, at least, will be by cooperation rather than by police power."

He has had long experience in similar work. When Mr. Roosevelt was governor of New York, Andrews served as deputy industrial commissioner under Miss Frances Perkins. He succeeded Miss Perkins as commissioner when she became secretary of labor in 1933.

He had announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor of New York in the election this fall but will withdraw his name now.

The Golden Text is: "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself" (John 5:26.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap . . . For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Galatians 6: 7,8.)

Co-ed at 72 Says She'll Register Again in Autumn

GLASSBORO, N. J.—(U.P.)—One of the country's oldest co-eds, Mrs. Sara Smith, 72-year-old grandmother, has packed up her books as classes closed at the Glassboro State Teachers college, but has announced she would be back in the same dormitory when classes re-open in September.

Mrs. Smith, who this year satisfied a life-long ambition to be a college "girl" and experience dormitory life, is taking a post graduate course, majoring in science, sociology and history.

She is known as "Grandma" to her fellow schoolmates and likes "it all better than sitting alone in the old farmhouse."

Mrs. Smith started teaching school when she was 17 and later married and raised three sons. She continued her teaching and became a "schoolgirl" again after her husband's death and her retirement as a teacher.

Summer studies permitted her to get a degree, but this year was her first as a dormitory student.

"I like to learn new things," she said, "and I am always sorry when classes end. I have found even more happiness as a student than I did as a teacher."

"The Keys to the City" by Lavinia Davis, is a good vacation story for girls. The setting is New York City, not the ideal spot in which to spend one's summer! At any rate, young Frankie Stanton felt pretty forlorn when her father told her that he had been forced to sell their summer home, and that she would have to spend her vacation in the city. The one bright spot was the thought that her father knew his way around New York far better than most people who live there.

Her companions were a young German girl, Betty Hoffman, and a boy cousin from Jamaica. Together, the three explored New York. Yorkville, the German section of the city, proved a veritable gold mine, yielding a mystery which took a great deal of courage to solve. All together, it proved to be a happy summer, and the girls who read this book might well fellow Frankie's example and do a little exploring in their own city!

Deborah---Emergency Leadership

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above title for July 17 is Judges 4:1-5:31, especially 4:1-9, 12-14, the Golden Text being Esther 4:14. "Who knoweth whether thou art not come to the Kingdom for such a time as this?")

Most of the emergencies into which we get ourselves are the direct result of our sin. By the evil we do we "get ourselves into a jam," and then we call upon the Lord to deliver us, instead of praying beforehand, "Lead us not into temptation." In the days of the Judges Israel was continually doing this. The burned child seemed never to learn. "And the children of Israel again did that which was evil in the sight of Jehovah and Jehovah sold them into the hand of Jabin, King of Canaan, ... the captain of whose host was Sisera . . . . and the children of Israel cried unto Jehovah: for he had 900 chariots of iron; and 20 years he mightily oppressed the children of Israel." Thus punishment runs in the wake of sin and makes the way of the transgressor hard.

A Woman Leader.

God is no respecter of persons, and so in that early day, as in the days of the New Testament church, it might have been said that with God "there is neither male nor female" That Deborah could overcome the prejudice of that day against her sex, and rise to the place of dominant national leadership, is of itself a high tribute to her strength of character. For 20 years her people had suffered oppression at the hands of Jabin and his cruel general, Sisera. During these years of national humiliation no man was forthcoming as the nation's deliverer, so Deborah became the Joan of Arc of her day for her people's deliverance when God's purpose in their punishment had served its purpose in bringing them to repentance.

"Now Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lappidoth, she judged Israel at that time . . . and the children of Israel came up to her for judgment and she sent and called Barak, the son of Abinoam out of Kedesh-naphtali and said unto him, Hath not Jehovah, the God of Israel, commanded saying, Go and draw unto Mount Tabor, and take with thee ten thousand men . . and I will draw unto thee, to the river Kishon, Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thy hand"

Barak the "Clinging Vine."

A fine tribute is paid to Deborah's inspiring leadership when Barak makes her presence with the army the condition of his acceptance of its command: "If thou wilt go with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt not go with me, I will not go, and she said, I will surely go with thee: notwithstanding, the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honor; for Jehovah will sell Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose and went with Barak to Kedesh." But she went as the "sturdy oak" and Barak as the "clinging vine." It was Deborah who sounded the battle-cry that inspired Barak and his men and drove them on to victory: "Deborah said unto Barak, up: for this is the day in which Jehovah hath delivered Sisera into thy hand: is not Jehovah gone out before thee? . . . And Jehovah discomfited Sisera and all his chariots, and all his host with the edge of the sword before Barak" In the eleventh chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, which has been called "Israel's Westminster Abbey," the author includes a niche for Barak among the heroes of faith "who through faith from weakness were made strong, waxed mighty in war and turned to flight the army of aliens"

ST. This comparison was made public by the St. Louis safety council. During 1937, when the 30-mile limit was effective, there were fourteen accidents. U. S. TO EXPAND NATIONAL PARK CAMP PROJECT

Half Million Authorized to Increase Low-Cost Vacation Facilities in Nation.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The government is bringing low-cost camping to thousands of citizens through the establishment of modern, well-equipped camps throughout the eastern section of the United States.

Although the program was inagurated less than three years ago, 46 areas ranging from 1,000 to 15,000 acres in 27 states have been laid out.

The low-cost camping plan is an outgrowth of the government's program to purchase millions of acres of sub-marginal land, principally for reforestation purposes.

In 1935, the proposal was put forward to make some of this land available to children who were unable to afford the luxury of private camps and to adults whose vacation funds were limited.

Construction of the first camps began in 1935 and a few camps were in operation later that year. Others were added in 1937 and 1938.

$500,000 Set Aside.

The plan proved so popular that congress recently appropriated an additional $500,000 for expansion of the present facilities.

The camps are administered by the National Park Service, which has supervision over the national parks. The areas contain from one to three camps, each of which can accommodate 96 persons.

The camps, in turn, are divided into four units, each accommodating 24 persons. At each camp are kitchens, mess-halls and other facilities, and wherever possible, provision is made for fishing, boating and swimming.

Compared with most private camps, the cost is extremely low. The rental per camp for a 10-week season is $600. For periods less than this, a charge of 25 cents for each camper per day is levied.

The government makes no profit on the venture. The rentals simply pay the cost of maintenance and operation.

Virtually all the construction work is done by CCC and WPA workers.

Although the camps are primarily for summer use, they may be used in the winter for week-end holidays. One school has made the nearby camp a part of the school system to provide recreation for underprivileged children and also for nature study courses.

In addition to providing inexpensive vacations for thousands of persons who otherwise might be forced to spend their vacation in the cities, this latest government venture into social work helps to preserve areas of historical and geographical interest.

Take Up Golf Too Adviser Suggests

By VIRGINIA LEE

And now comes the golf widow. Why haven't I heard from her before?

"A GOLF WIDOW" is a newcomer to the town in which she lives. She writes, "I am married to the sweetest man I know and am ever so happy. Since I don't know anyone here I don't find much excitement or fun, and naturally I live for Sunday to come so my husband and I can be together. I love the outdoors, swimming, dancing, riding, fishing, just about everything but golf.

"My husband has taken up golf and loves it. I don't mind him playing Sunday morning, because he is usually back by the time I am up, dressed and have dinner ready. Then we have the rest of the day to do whatever I like. Hubby likes these sports too, but not like golf."

Then she explains that lately her husband has been playing with some men who live in another town where his people live. They go Saturday and stay with his folk, and Sunday the men don't get started to play until 1 or 2 o'clock, which means that they don't get back until evening. His folk are all lovely to her and she is fond of them, but it isn't any fun for her to be parked with them while he plays, and if she says anything hubby thinks she doesn't like his people—which naturally puts her in a spot.

Is She Wrong?

"Now, Miss Lee, can you see my point of view? Do you think I am wrong in feeling the way I do about it? I have always been active, now I fell like I'm getting into a rut. Your advice will be more than appreciated."

Is there any reason why you, too, cannot take up golf, my dear? That would seem to be the answer. You enjoy other sports and I see no reason why you wouldn't like golf. Even if your husband doesn't play with you, but has his game with the other men, you and some other woman or girl might have your game, and later you and your husband might play together. Just learning would be interesting. I have always thought that is what I would do if I were a golf widow.

I know one woman whose husband plays all year around—every single Sunday and all day long—because they live in California. She has her friends and her garden, and seems to be happy. I always feel sorry when married folk find their pleasures apart, but where you live the summer is so short, and it is so good for a man to get out in the sunshine on one day in the week, that I hate to spoil it for him, although I know it does seem selfish for him to find something else to do when you have only that one day a week with him.

Of course you will soon have plenty of friends in your new home town, and that will help. I certainly think your husband should give up an occasional day during the summer to go with you. There are of course, places to swim, play tennis, ride horseback, etc., around, where you live. Find some of them. The principal thing is not to let a game of golf mar your comradeship. Try to work the problem out without anger.

WONDERING is "going on" 22 years old and has been going with a boy for four years. In all that time he hasn't once spoken of marriage. "He tells me I am the only girl in his life," she writes, "and he seems to be very happy and contented when he is with me, but I do not know whether to keep on going with him or not. I am looking forward to marriage and a home. I love him very much, but I do not know if he loves me enough to take me as his wife."

You certainly have a right to know whether this young man is having a platonic friendship with you or whether he expects you to marry him when he is in a position to wed. Why not bring the conversation around to marriage some time soon? He may be one of those chaps who enjoy feminine society but who has vowed to remain a bachelor. Or he may be taking it for granted that you know that "going steady" with him means marriage when he is financially able to swing it. At any rate, it is a good thing to know where you stand, as you want eventually to wed.

Exercise Suitable For Summer

By JUILET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

Today this department is offering another exercise that is especially designed for the summer months. It consists of five movements and is an excellent setting-up exercise, but here is its recommendation for hot weaher: It gives you a perfectly marvelous workout, with emphasis on the abdomen, with the least possible expenditure of energy.

These exercises have been planned so that you constantly change your positions and include reclining, standing and squatting. This switching around minimizes the strain on any given set of muscles and keeps you from becoming overheated or tuckered out.

On warm days it is always advisable to do your exercises in the morning before you have had your breakfast. After you've done some perspiring you can take a warm bath and be fresh for your day's activities.

Here is the first of the series: Lie on the floor, with your face downward, resting on your forearm at the side of your body with your palms flat on the floor. Raise your head and then your shoulders. The idea is to jacknife your body so that you are resting on your forearms and toes. Now try to slowly lower your body to its original position. Repeat this 10 times.

Second: Lie flat on the floor on your stomach, with your face downward, resting on your forearms with your heels together. Rise slowly on your arms, bending yourself backwards as far as possible until your arms are extended to their full length. Now slowly lower yourself to your original position. Repeat this 10 times also.

Third: Lie on the floor on your back with your feet together and your arms extended over your head. Raise your right leg and both your arms. Touch your leg with your hands but keep your arms and your knees straight. Now raise your left leg and both your arms and touch your leg with your hands. Alternate first your right and then your left legs. Do this movement 10 times.

Fourth: Squat on the floor with your feet together and your hands on the floor in front of you with your arms extended. Rise forward on your arms and, balancing on your hands, raise your feet off the floor. Repeat this 10 times. This is a balance exercise and is excellent for poise.

Fifth: Take a standing position with your heels together and your arms extending above your head. Bend forward and touch your hands to the floor. Straighten up to the original position keeping your arms above your head. Then bend dackward, leading with your arms, as far as possible. Repeat this 10 times.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

With the satisfying assurance that Jim would keep Katie from any "listening in," I hurried away from the kitchen to the study where I had asked Dicky to take the captain of the state troopers. My first glance as I entered was at Dicky's face, and the relief mirrored there, replacing the panic of a few minutes before, freed me from tension also.

Both men were standing when I entered, and though Dicky's voice was casual and controlled, I detected an undertone of excitement in it.

"Listen to this, Madge!" he adjured me. "This is sure what our British friends would term 'a rum go'."

He drew out a chair for me as he spoke, and seated me with the meticulous observance of social nuances which is his.

No Time to Spare.

"Sit down, Captain," he said, turning to the officer. "This is going to take a little time. If you don't mind repeating to Mrs. Graham what you have just told me, we can go on from there."

"Time is just what I haven't," the captain said, smiling. "This message from Mr. Spencer entails a lot of work done quickly."

"We'll only keep you long enough to finish your message," Dicky said quickly while I heard myself repeating "A message from Mr. Spencer" in dazed fashion.

"Steady, Madge!"

Dicky's voice brought me back to firm ground again.

"Yes, Dad's in the offing," he went on, "and he wishes you to do something for him."

There was a challenge in his voice, and my faltering spirit lifted itself to answer it.

"I am ready to hear it, whatever it is," I said equably.

Dicky's eyes flashed approval at me, and the trooper's face showed distinct relief.

Trooper Repeats Message.

"It's only this," he said. "A messenger came to us a few minutes ago from your father. He had a letter for you, but your father had instructed him not to be seen coming here, and had told him to hand it to me for delivery to you."

He put his hand into his coat, and took out a plain envelope, which he handed to me. I noticed that it bore no line of writing on the outside. I rose abruptly from my seat, for I knew my father's ways, and that he would not wish me to open his message in the presence of the officer, unless he had specially requested that procedure.

"He asked that you open it by yourself," the officer said, "but he sent me an oral message also, which I was instructed to pass on to you or your husband."

He had risen with Dicky when I had, and he now took a step toward the door. His impatience to be gone was strongly evident, and his next words revealed the reason for his haste.

Asks Detour Traffic.

"He asked me to have all traffic detoured past the wood road tonight from 10 o'clock on until you telephone me and ask me to drop over to the farm some time this week because you think there have been trespassers in your wood lot. Then we will know that whatever car or cars are scheduled to come through have arrived here, and will stop patrolling the detour."

He was at the door when he finished speaking, and Dicky answered the ironic smile with which he uttered the last words.

"What's the average traffic on that stretch of road after 10 o'clock at night?" he drawled.

"About one car a night," the officer answered, "but I'm not asking any questions when Mr. Spencer sends me a message. I simply get busy on what he wants. Don't be surprised if your yard suddenly erupts several husky armed men. I'm putting two men near your house and your father is sending down four. They ought to be here at any minute. Goodnight, and call me if you need me."

My Neighbor Says:

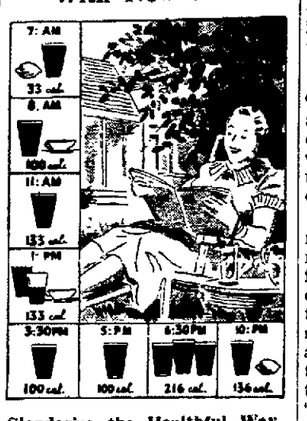

Ferns require light and air. They grow best when placed near a window where they do not get direct sunlight.

A weak solution of chloride of lime will remove peach stains from linen.

Although many garden makers leave their tulips undisturbed for several years, they ought to be lifted after three or four years if quality bloom is to be maintained. The work can be done now. The bulbs can be stored readily in boxes in any dry place and planted out again in the autumn. Better results are obtained when this plan is adopted than when the bulbs are separated, and replanted in the autumn. The same advice applies to daffodils, although these bulbs will go for a longer time without being lifted.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, July 17.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds testimonies of splendid opportunities for gaining honors, preferment or promotion at the hands of superiors or those in power. This may be through elements of intrigue, shrewdness or sagacity, as surprises and mystery pervade the astral aura. Change may be sudden or romantic, and elders may figure conspicuously in the happy trend of events.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of promotion, honors, preferment and favors from superiors, elders and those in places of power and influence. It is a time to seek these and be ready to make the definite changes waiting upon large opportunities. Tact, sagacity or secret understandings, however, may be required.

A child born on this day may have an adventurous, ambitious and serious character, which may attract the attention of elders and those in power. Through them it may enjoy many benefices and preferments, possibly an inheritance.

For Monday, July 18.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a day of great enterprise, with much initiative in promoting new and important projects. Merit, sound plans and creative energies of high order are bound to gain financial co-operation, although there may be certain elements of a speculative nature. These should not discourage, although there is a warning against some loss, probably a personal possession.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusual activity, with the energies and creative faculties keyed up to high pressure in a productive channel. This may attract capital, if workable plans are sound and practical. A quick turnover may be advisable, but be careful with papers and personal possessions, especially while in transit.

A child born on this day may have a highly-nervous, energetic and keyed-up temperament. Still, it should have sound judgment and creative ideas for swift operation and surprising gains on speculative propositions.

Readers Ask Wedding Questions

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: My parents are giving me my wedding, but my grandparents are lending their big house for the reception. We live in an apartment in the same town. When having the reception invitations engraved, is their name included on the reception invitation, and what can we do to let those on my fiance's list know that we would like their answers to be sent to our address rather than to the one given for the reception?

Answer: If your parents are really giving the reception; that means if they are ordering the food and the decorations and undertaking all the expenses of it, the invitation is engraved in their names, your grandparents' address alone given as that for the reception. In the lower left corner of the invitation should be engraved "Kindly send response to" and then your own address. If the invitations to the house were sent out in your grandparents' names it would mean only one thing: that they were really giving the entire reception; in other words, paying for it.

Dear Mrs. Post: Our family is not very well off but in spite of this fact we can't see what objection there would be to my having a simple wedding in church. The invitation list of both families is long, but as our church is large everyone can be invited to the church. The reception afterward will be for immediate families only. Mother has raised the question, however, concerning the taste of people in our known modest circumstances, sending out so many engraved invitations to the ceremony. She feels that even though having fifty people at the church would cost the same as having five hundred—except for the cost of invitations—we might be criticized for what could to some people seem like a conspicuous display.

Answer: It is quite all right to ask as many people as you like to the church. The difference between the display and the simple wedding is one of decoration. In other words, if the whole church were elaborately decorated with flowers this would seem a good deal of display. But to merely have palms on the chancel, which, as every one knows, are rented from a florist, and to have flowers only on the altar, makes it entirely suitable since as you say the expense goes no further than the number of invitations. After all, sending announcements to these same people would cost just as much.

LOVE IN DANGER

By KATHRYN BEMIS

CHAPTER VI

Before she could brush aside her sudden surging emotion, he had started the motor, and they were whizzing through the fresh clean night breeze. Tears blurred her eyes, nearly blotting out the giant old forest trees. She was seeing with humiliation and uncertainty. The uncertainty was uppermost. was somehow bound up in that stolen kiss, the consciousness of which still burned against her quivering lips.

They were waiting for a traffic light to change when he turned to her half penitently.

"I can't honestly say I'm sorry—for that kiss. It was an unaccountable yielding to impulse—not a premeditated piece of daring. Am I forgiven?"

She stared at him an instant, trying to bring her resentment to the surface again. The effort was wholly futile.

"I—I suppose—I'll have to forgive you." she conceded, unsteadily.

He smiled slowly and turned from her to guide the little car across the street on the green light.

"Dynasties have tottered at a woman's word, my dear," he said softly, his eyes straight ahead. "My own special dynasty centers around one woman. I can't have her misjudging me. Whoever took Stella Clifton's pearls evidently thought the trail too hot. I found them in a washbowl in the men's room—believe it or not."

Ray's eyes widened. She brightened, then perceptibly wilted. She remembered the other necklace she had seen Frank Armstrong examining earlier that evening. Did he think he'd been discovered? Was he now camouflaging his actions by pretending innocence about Stella's necklace? She tried to convince herself that this was so, but her stubborn heart refused to lose faith in him.

Her reason told her that it was the height of folly to trust him but she said, "I don't want to misjudge you—and I won't"

"Do you mean that?"

Her throat contracted. Finally, she managed a low "Yes."

His quick laugh somehow filled the moment with contagious happiness. "That's—gad—that's wonderful!" he ejaculated boyishly.

For a few minutes there was no sound but the gentle purring of the motor in the silence of the night. They sped along the shadowy streets past closed still houses. Here and there, a glimmer of light came from a single window; but for the most part all dwellings showed only a broad expanse of dark wall, indistinctly brick, stone or wood.

"To continue your report," he said suddenly, "Is there anything else?"

"I'd really like to find Aunt Lucy's necklace," she said, wondering how he would slide out from under that one.

She carefully watched his reaction and fancied that she had made a slight dent in his armor But he shrugged indifferently and remarked, "Oh, well—that's beside the point. No doubt your aunt's necklace was insured—she'll be reimbursed by the——"

Blinding headlights from an approaching automobile now took all his attention. When they had safely passed them, he made no effort to finish the sentence he had left dangling in midair.

"Aunt Lucy never could be repaid for the loss of that necklace," said Ray, determined to force him to discuss pearls. "It was an heirloom—would have been mine some day. I'd give a great deal to find it."

She waited in breathless suspense for him to reach into his pocket again and give her the pearls she had seen him handling a few short hours before. But nothing happened. Evidently, he had no intention of relinquishing any more of the loot tonight.

He only remarked, "Very unfortunate," and jammed his foot hard on the accelerator. The little car leaped ahead swiftly, its lights sweeping the asphalt like a beacon.

In a few minutes he continued, "We'll have to give Mr. Roper the big scandal of the evening. What you'd like to have returned to your aunt isn't, unfortunately, important just now. He'll want something to go on."

"Very well then—if I must mention it!" she exclaimed, in exasperation. "I saw Aunt Lucy's pearls tonight! They were being discreetly fondled by a certain man. It seems hardly necessary to name him."

"You couldn't name him. You possibly saw me looking at what you thought were your aunt's pearls—when you came from the dressing room soon after our arrival at Clifton's. I was a fool to take chances. I acknowledge it. But I assure you I was not looking at your aunt's pearls."

"There are no pearls in Mumford as large as auntie's!" she insisted hotly. "Of course—a man could bring pearls—from somewhere else."

"Why not?" he agreed, dryly. "A man could have robbed a maharajah on the way here from New York. A man could do any number of preposterious things if he were so inclined. I could——"

"You could—and no doubt did!" she flamed.

They had come to her aunt's house now and he stopped the car in the shadow of the big old elms framing the drive.

"Please, darling," he pleaded, in a different tone, "Let's not say what we'll regret later. Kiss me good night—and trust me. Will you?"

She made a movement to open the door on her side. He caught her arm and held her fast in the seat.

"We mustn't quarrel now," he said firmly. "There's too much at stake. There's love—pearls—and a number of other problems. Suppose we begin all over again—on a business basis, if you wish. I'll try to remember you're not in love with me—that you merely tolerate me for business reasons. How about it?"

She looked hard at him in the uncertain light coming from the colonial lantern over the front door, tried to fathom his thoughts. A surge of high emotion etched a lovely colorful pattern against her heart. Ignoring every grain of common sense she possessed, she said quickly, "I'm in this affair—I'll see it through, Mr. Armstrong."

"It might be easier to call me Frank."

She lifted dark lashes high over startled eyes and gazed at him in silent wonder—and not a little admiration. Yet—the colossal nerve of him!

Then before she sensed what he was about, he had gathered her in his arms and demanded gently, "Say it just once—Frank."

She knew it was folly but she murmured softly, "Frank."

Half-heartedly, she made a move to pull away, but with his lips on hers all desire to leave him fled! She sighed and cuddled in his arms in perfect contentment.

Suddenly he released her. He opened the door on her side and assisted her out with the utmost deference. He went quickly up the steps with her without saying a word. His "good night" was uttered with the formality of a stranger when Jarvis opened the door.

Once inside the house, Ray slowly mounted the stairs, and entered her sitting-room humming a plaintive little melody that came directly from her heart. Then all at once she was swept with a surging emotion that was akin to physical pain.

She stepped out on her moonlit balcony just in time to see the tail-light of Frank Armstrong's car disappear down the street. The scent of dying, dew-laden shrubs and grasses caressed her quivering nostrils. The lazy September night breeze swept over her burning cheeks and bare head, partly clearing away the cobweb perplexities which had been accumulating for the last few hectic days. Frank Armstrong loved her! Frank! Why was she unable to resist his compelling personality? She complied with his every command. What had come over her?

She shrugged, attempted impatience with herself, instead broke into a happy smile, and went inside.

She got into rose satin pajamas and, much against her will, crawled into bed. It was several hours before her heart wearied of its tumult and allowed her to sink into deep slumber. She awakened the following noon, realizing that she had made an engagement to play tennis with Hal in half an hour. He was probably waiting already in fuming disgust on a bench beside Aunt Lucy's court. He always expected his dates to be ready ahead of time and most of the girls humored him, although Ray never had.

She stretched her soft white arms luxuriously and rang for Mimi. She turned her glowing face eagerly toward the sunshine that poured into the room. "It's glorious—to be in love," she thought exultantly. Then abruptly she grew serious. If one were in love with a man outside the law, what then?"

"Mr. Williams phoned he couldn't be here this morning to play tennis," said Mimi, coming in.

"Fine! That's a lucky start for any day!" Ray declared, laughing.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BOOMERANG DOUBLES

NOT ALL bomerangs are made of wood. Some of them are fashioned from wooden thinking at the bridge table. This is particularly true of penalty doubles which advertise to the declarer exactly what dangers beset him and hence steer him unerringly to the only line of play with a chance to succeed.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

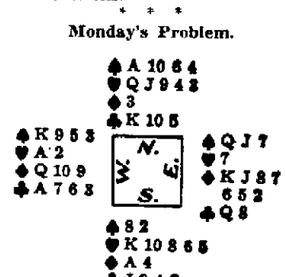

South's opening bid on this deal was 1-Spade. North jumped this to 3-Spades and South bid 4-Clubs. Next North bid 4-Hearts, South 5-No Trumps and North 6-Spades, which West doubled, and South redoubled.

West led the diamond 10, and when the dummy was exposed it was quite evident to South that what West held for his double was the missing trump honors.

All that South had to do was guess West's probable distribution correctly, run that number of leads in each suit and then lead a trump to West. Played in that manner, he limited his losses to exactly one trick. Had West refrained from doubling, it is probable South would have played trumps at once and in that event could not have avoided the loss of two tricks.

Monday's Problem.

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

How should North attempt to make 4-Hearts after the lead of the diamond 7?

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the county commissioners said he didn't think the city or the county should be charged with laxity, when they had been informed by WPA a year ago that curtailments in the WPA could be expected this year.

He pointed out however that the county had the $1,000,000 bridge and road program under way and was working on an extensive county-wide ditch program to provide additional employment this winter.

June Expenditures Greater By $200; Allocations For Month Listed.

BUCYRUS — According to figures submitted by Crawford county commissioners, relief costs in the county jumped approximately $200 in June.

Total distribution in June was $3,964.18 as compared with $3,760 in May. A $300 increase in relief expenditures in Galion was responsible for the increase, commissioners stated. Expenditures of the WPA sewing room, which has been closed, were deducted.

Allocations made during the month were: Bucyrus city, $1,751.29; Galion, $1,221.33; Jackson township including Crestline, $308.63; Auburn, $74.43; Bucyrus, $5.87; Chatfield, $29.79; Dallas, $70.21; Holmes, $959; Jefferson, $31.76; Liberty, $52.50; Lykens, $19.99; Polk, $15; Texas, $12; Tod, $84.56; Sandusky, $10 and Whetstone, $16.

DRAWS JAIL SENTENCE

BUCYRUS — Charged with drunken driving, S. E. Marquardt, New York Central Railroad crossing watchman pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and given a 15-day sentence in the county jail, when arraigned before Mayor George Dustman Friday. Marquardt was arrested after striking a parked car on Sandusky avenue, near the Ohio Power company office.

HEADS COUNTY CLERKS

BUCYRUS—Nelson Kleinhans of Port Clinton, Ottawa county, was elected president of the Northwestern Ohio Clerk of Courts association at a meeting held at the Weaver hotel here Thursday night. Other officers elected were Vaughn Bolles of Bryan, vice president; Miss Bernadine Lester of Sandusky, secretary-treasurer.

The group will meet again in two weeks for an outing on Lake Erie.

SCHOOL BONDS BEFORE VOTERS

Ashland Township To Decide Whether To Construct New $100,000 Building.

ASHLAND—Voters in Montgomery township will decide in the August primaries whether they want a new $100,000 school plant for their elemenetary school children.

They will vote on a resolution adopted by the Montgomery township rural school board which will determine whether the board shall issue $55,000 in bonds as the school district's share of the cost of the project.

The remainder of the costs of building, if the voters approve, will be furnished by the state Public Works administration in Columbus, where an application by the local school board is now on file.

With the permission of the taxing commission to proceed with the project, the school board recently adopted the plans for the new school system so that if possible, they would not need to send their elementary school pupils to school outside the township.

The proposed school would be centrally located, and embody modern educational facilities, it was announced.

The costs of such a project, from the standpoint of the township's share, would be borne by bonds, to be retired within 25 years.

Members of the local board include Cloyd McNull, president, Max Norris, Howard Hess, Arthur Smith, Ernest Hartman and Miss Zella Swartz, clerk.

CHILD PIANIST, 7, APPEARS IN RECITAL AT GALION SCHOOL

GALION—Galion's outstanding child pianist, Teddy Rehl, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rehl, was presented Friday night by his teacher, Bessie Todd, for his first public recital. Galion high school auditorium was well-filled with music lovers and those interested in the accomplishments of their children.

Teddy not only surprised his listeners with his understanding and technique in playing his numbers, but his childish simplicity on the stage amused his audience. He played without the music before him, and appeared for 12 numbers. Included in his repertoire were: Solfeggietto, Carl Philip E. Bach; Bouree, Johann Sebastian Bach; Gigue, Corelli; Tambourin, Rameau; Staccato Etude, Reinecke; Song of the Brook and Velocity Etude, both by Granzebach; Boat Song and Winter Wind by Heller; Allemand, Handel; For Elise, and Sonata in G, Op. 49, No. 2, both by Beethoven.

His closing number was his own improvisation, and he also transformed a number into several different keys.

Miss Todd who has produced a number of musicians who have become nationally known, believes Teddy has a wonderful future.

Several artists from Crestline appeared on the program. Fritz Holcker, violinist, played two numbers, with accompaniment by Genevieve Howell of Mansfield.

Schubert's "Ave Maria" was sung by Elfrida K. Smith of Crestline, with violin obbligato by Russell B. Smith, and piano accompaniment by Janet Crider.

Bentley Ford of Bucyrus, vocalist, who has been associated with a number of New York and Chicago musical organizations besides the Chicago Civic Opera company, pleased the audience with four numbers, and responded to an encore. Miss Crider was at the piano.

Proceeds from the silver offering taken at the auditorium door will go toward paying the balance on the concert grand piano which Miss Todd purchased several years ago for the school.

USES KNIFE AND WOOD TO 'PAINT'

his pen sketches, but he decided to make the picture of the cathedral with wood inlay. He purchased the wood from importers, and his only tool was a fine sharp-bladed knife.

He started at the top of the picture, laying the background first and then began the towers. He cut the bits of wood as he needed them, some of them being only 1-65th of an inch in width. These strips of ebony, were used for outlining. They are no wider than the scratch of a pen.

He worked on it in most of his leisure time for three years, and when the last piece of wood was cut—that of the long shadow on the walk in front of the cathedral—he had cut a few more than 38,000 pieces. The most meticulous work, other than the outlnes, was in blending the dark woods into shadows for the arches.

Esto, who is 25, began working with inlay while a student in high school and even there his work was unusual, and he has had no special art training since then.

Persons interested in his work will try to have it displayed in New York next year.

FAST WORK

THE morning after two days of steady drenching rain I mowed the lawn. I noticed in certain lower places, great numbers of holes the fishing worms had made . . . not the piles of moist, powdered earth, but smooth shiny edges that showed the worm vacated his burrow in great haste, when water entered.

I saw a number creeping along close to the roots of grass, their long slender bodies making sticky grooves on their winding trail.

As I turned at the further end of the lawn, I saw, beneath the maple tree on the south side, a little moving something that had not been there when I passed before. It was a young robin who had felt his wings were strong enough to fly, and had taken off from a branch near the secluded home nest.

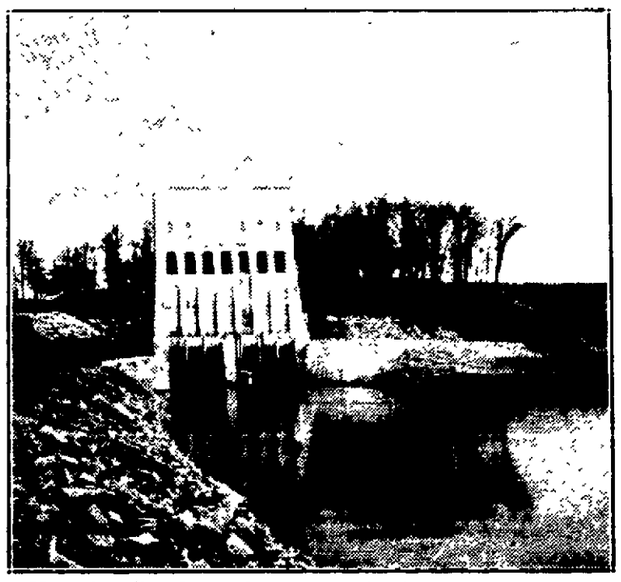

He saw me, and gave one lusty chirp that was almost a scream, and attempted to fly with all his might. He was not strong enough. I thought I would catch him and place him in the nest again. As I chased the poor fledgling farther down the lawn, he chirped more loudly and used both wings and feet to flounder rapidly away.

The mother robin, attracted by her baby's cry for help, flew against my legs, crossed between me and the little struggling bird and scolded harshly.

She paused, listened for a fraction of a second, moved her beak into the soil so quickly that I could not follow, and drew out a tempting worm. Hurriedly she ran to her struggling young one and literally crammed it down his throat.

Hardly had I time to think what was taking place, when the weak little bird, strengthened inwardly, spread his wings and flew triumphantly away.

LEGION INVADES NEW PHILLY SUNDAY

THE PENNANT possibilities of the Mansfield entry in the Central Ohio semi-pro league will be tested Sunday when the American Legion club invades New Philadelphia.

Victorious in their first game of the second half, Manager Dewey Durant's Legionnaires today loomed as possible threats in the current race.

The experience gained by the young Mansfield club in the first half is expected to steady it considerably.

Mansfield has shown constant improvement in all departments, and if the defensive play does not falter, Durant expects the Legionnaires to be contenders all the way.

The Legionnaires served notice on their rivals last Sunday when they tripped Columbus, which finished only a half game out of first place in the first half.

Sunday Mansfield meets the club which administered the worst defeat it has suffered this year. Whether the Legionnaires will be successful in their attempt to gain revenge remains to be seen, but Durant seemed rather certain that the New Phillies would not have a runaway Sunday.

Durant was undecided today whether he would start Harold Geiger, who stopped Columbus in a neat pitching exhibition Sunday, or Donald Dudley on the mound. New Philadelphia, third in the first half, defeated Coshocton, 6 to 1, last Sunday.

PIRATES TOY WITH IDEA OF TRAINING IN FLORIDA NEXT SPRING.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Good morning and is Grimm still managing the Cubs. . . . Note to the California Chamber of Commerce: The Pirates are reported to be toying with the idea of training in Miami next spring! . . . Jack Miley, former New York sports columnist (who once fought Dizzy Dean) has just sold three sports stories to as many national magazines. . . . Keep your eyes peeled—the one about Chairman Phelan of the boxing commish is a pip.

Colonel Ruppert pays himself only $15,000 per year for being owner and president of the Yanks which is considerably less than some of his hired hands draw down. . . . But then, as Victor Jones cracks in the Boston Evening Globe, nobody ever paid their way into the park just to see the Cunnel, did they? . . . Helen Jacobs gets in tomorrow and the first string critics are going down the bay to hear what she's got to say about her "pheud" with Mrs. Wills Moody—if any. . . . Mr. Harry Danning is getting some panning. . . . Ouch!

The war is on, boys! . . . Alabama supporters in Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz., are battling among themselves over the honor of entertaining the Crimson Tide on its way to the coast to play Southern California next fall. . . . Right now Tucson is one up, for arrangements have been made to have the team work out there. . . . It was so hot in Cincinnati the other night Johnny Vander Meer and Dusty Cooke had to sleep in chairs on the veranda—porch to you. . . . Don't try to tell us that town hasn't got a fever on. . . . The Italians in Philly went so wild over Tony Galento they had to take him to Summit, N. J., to finish training for the John Henry Lewis bout. . . . "They just wouldn't leave the big bum alone," explained Manager Joe Jacobs.

BEANS REARDON, the National league umpire, is a wise old bird. . . . You don't fool him on these hot days. . . . Before going to the park he hunts up a vegetable joint and buys himself a head of cabbage. . . . He soaks the leaves in ice water, places them under his cap and then proceeds to enjoy the ball game. . . . Those good-looking Reds have the dolls flocking to the park in Rhineland. . . . Personally, Bill McKechnie would prefer a little more "sock appear" but he always settles for the other kind when he sees the attendance figgers. . . .

Dizzy Dean to Test Arm Against Bees

CHICAGO—(UP)—Dizzy Dean, whose mysterious shoulder "kink" has kept him out of the Chicago Cubs lineup since May 3, will test his $250,000 arm against the Boston Bees in the first game of a doubleheader tomorrow. Manager Charlie Grimm decided to start Diz after watching the famous invalid warm up yesterday.

Dean has not pitched since he was relieved in the seventh inning of a game with the Philadelphia Phillies May 3.

Snead, Runyan Reach Pay Off Round In PGA

Battle for Pro Golf Crown In 36-Hole Match.

SHAWNEE - ON - DELAWARE, Pa.—(UP)—The long and short meet here today in the final round of the 21st National Professional Golfers association championship.

The long of it is Sammy Snead, the West Virginia star who is generally recognized as the game's longest hitter. The short of it is little Paul Runyan, a dapper half pint, whose tee shots carry no farther than the average club player's.

Defeats Picard.

Runyan, gunning for his second title, reached the pay off round with a 2 up victory over Henry Picard, while Snead earned his title bid by conquering rugged Jimmy Hines of New York 1 up in the semi-finals.

If it is true that contrasting styles and personalities make for a "natural" in sport, then today's championship engagement is a matchmaker's dream. The difference in the two men is not confined to power alone. Snead is a newcomer; Runyan is a veteran. Snead is a "loner" who does not mix very much with his fellow professionals, and would win no popularity contest in which his rivals voted. Runyan is a friendly mixer and very popular.

In his march to the final Runyan first beat Levi Lynch. Then in order came Tony Manero, Ray Mangrum, Horton Smith and Picard.

Lack of distance doesn't bother Runyan, because he is as deadly with a spoon or No. 4 wood as the other players are with irons. Picard, the Augusta Masters' champion, is a tremendous clouter, but he never was even with Runyan. He lost the first hole and stayed down throughout.

Good on Greens, Too.

Paul will have his hands full against Snead, however, because Sammy's game isn't based solely on power. There's a world of finesse in those powerful shoulders and wrists of the West Virginian, and yesterday his putter was hot. When he needed a long putt he canned it. Sammy had 12 one-putt greens against Hines and some of the putts were extremely long.

Sam stepped his way to the last round by downing Frank Champ, Terl Johnson, Felix Serafin, Jim Foulis and Hines.

A victory for Snead would send him well ahead in the list of money winners for the year 1938. He leads now with $6,512.83 and the P. G. A. title carries a purse of $1,100. The match is at 36 holes

City of Horses Springs Up at Fairground As Trainers Prep Stables For Fair Races

ALMOST overnight, the Richland county fairground has been transformed into a bedlam of activity—the kind that is reminiscent of the days when Mansfield occupied an outstanding place on the horseman's calendar.

Canvas canopied stables, that rather pleasing odor of massaging liniment; the long rows of racing trappings pegged neatly on the stable walls; dozens of shining sulkies, and here and there a horse groom napping peacefully in the shade, while reclining on a canvas-backed chair.

The scene is remindful that after a lapse of some years, Mansfield in just 11 more days will be the mecca for harness racing devotees from the immediate middle west.

Seventy of the expected 250 horses for the county fair's race meeting are already on the lot and each day sees additional stables being moved in.

They are coming from all the big tracks and recently completed race meetings. And the reason that the attention of the horseman is being focused on Mansfield is that the meeting here is the next BIG one of their season's program.

The North Randall grand circuit meeting is over. That's where most of the early arrivals at the track now came from. Others are coming in from Short Ship meetings, ready to make the rounds of Ohio's county fairs. Mansfield is first on the list of dates and the others follow.

B. H. Huston, superintendent of the speed program, said that arrangements are being made to quarter some of the horses at the Ashland county fairground. There will be insufficient stable quarters to maintain all the entries at the local track, he said. A paddock is to be erected on the grounds and horses stabled at Ashland will be quartered there on their racing days.

Beaming with expectations of a highly successful meeting, Huston has suggested that Mansfielders whose racing interest may have become dulled through a lapse in racing activity here, take a trip to the race track, visit the stables and get polished up for the four-event daily programs on July 27, 28 and 29.

There's plenty to hold their interest. In the mornings, trainers put their charges through their paces. And for afternoons and evenings, there's an opportunity to inspect the rows of stables for close up views of the various pacers and trotters quartered there.

Here are some of the stables quartered at the track for the meeting:

BOB VALLERY of Urbana—Single Sis, 2:01¾; W. J. Vole, 2:12¼; Lib Vologde, three-year-old pacer; Col Brady and Gallant Lee 2:11¾, pacer.

R. C. DALHINGER of Dearborn, Mich.—Bob Cochate 2:01, Dickerson, 2:05, Simpson 2:09½, Tea.

GABE CARTNAL Hanover—Cynthia, 2:05¼; Stella Dale 3-year-old pacer; Phumar 2:09, Dr. McElwyn, 2:07¾, Emeral Isle 2-year-old pacer; T. D. Junior 3-year-old, Isabel Grattan, Callie G., 2:06¾.

T. W. SMART, of Columbus—Gayety, 2:11, Jim Neville, 4-year-old trotter, Peter Patch, 2:05¼; Alice Law, 2:07, Calumet Estehl, 2:07, Lady Dillon, 2:11, Loe Abbe, 2:03¾; T. C. Grattan; Dorothy Bob, 2:14.

Other stables expected here within the next few days include those of Dr. H. T. Myers of Tiffin reserving 16 stalls George Hunter of Youngstown with four stalls Bob Plaxico of Coshocton, Frank Cares of Norwalk.

Giants Get Chance to Prove Pirates Are Flashes Today

Pittsburgh Series Likely to Determine Chances of Bucs to Win National Crown.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK—(UP)—The New York Giants, and Manager Bill Terry in particular, have been scorning the Pittsburgh Pirates' pennant bid ever since they started their climb to the top a month ago.

Today the Giants got a chance to prove that the Pirates are mere flashes and haven't the stuff to set the pace and fight off all challengers in a ding-dong race. Terry and his two-time champions moved into Pittsburgh for a red-hot series which is quite likely to prove whether the Pirates are made of championship mettle or were just having one of their seasonal spurts when they won 13 games in a row.

40,000 Expected.

Opposing pitchers for today's battle, expected to pack Forbes Field to its capacity of 40,000, were Bob Klinger, Pirates' rookie who leads the National league moundsmen with seven victories and one defeat, and Cliff Melton, Giants' lanky southpaw who has won nine and lost six.

In nine games with the Giants thus far the Pirates have won five and lost four.

The Giants trailed the Pirates by only .002 percentage points as the series opened. New York picked up a full game on Pittsburgh yesterday by defeating Cincinnati, 3-2, while Brooklyn was knocking off the Pirates, 9-4.

The Chicago Cubs, hearing rumors that Manager Charlie Grimm may be fired, clicked off their third straight victory by beating the Phillies, 4-1.

St. Louis' Cardinals snapped an eight-game losing streak when they pounded out 14 hits to beat the Boston Bees 10-6.

In the American league the New York Yankees moved away from the slumping Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox crept up from behind on the Tribe. By winning a six-inning game from the Detroit Tigers, 3-0, the Yanks increased their lead to a game and a half. Lefty Gomez allowed three hits to score his seventh victory.

Home Run Wins.

Bobby Doerr's home run with the bases loaded enabled the Boston Red Sox to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 5-3. It was the ninth straight loss for St. Louis. The Chicago White Sox upset Washington, 11-3.

22 CARS TO COMPETE IN MARION RACE SUNDAY

MARION—A field consisting of 22 cars has entered the dirt track races to be held in the city Sunday. The entries include Bill Chittum, Deb Snyder, Mike Salay, Wild Bill Spears, Herb Manges, Fred Furgeson, Ben Musick and Johnnie Crone.

Hang Up Wins In Club Loop

Schoolmasters, Foresters, Zents' Radios Triumph.

The Schoolmasters routed the Knights of Columbus, 18 to 4, in a Y. M. C. A. Club softball league game at Empire field yesterday. Freeman and Baumgardner, with three hits apiece, led the attack for the teachers. Freeman of the winners and Colangelo of the K. of C. hit for the circuit.

Scoring six runs in the last three innings to break a 2-all tie, the Catholic Foresters won over the Hermit club, 8 to 2, at North park. Gilde limiting the losers to three hits.

Zent's Radio club defeated Local No. 40, 11 to 7, at Prospect park, Hamman and Boughton obtaining three hits apiece for the winners. The box score of the Zents'-Local 40 game cannot be published as it was incomplete.

Indians Totter

Banish Thoughts to Overtake Yanks, Dig In to Protect Hold on Second Place.

PHILADELPHIA — (UP) — The Cleveland Indians today temporarily banished thoughts of overtaking the pace-setting New York Yankees, and dug in to protect their hold on second place in the American league standing.

The tottering Indians dropped their third game in four starts of their current road trip here yesterday when they were beaten 5-4 by the lowly Philadelphia Athletics.

Hudlin Collapses.

Willis Hudlin, the creaky veteran who has spent most of the season in the shade of the dugout, was brought out of hiding by Manager Oscar Vitt yesterday to face the Athletics. It was his first appearance since June 18. Hudlin pitched good ball for seven innings and then collapsed. Bill Zuber and Denny Galehouse, a pair of hurlers who have shown dismally both in starting and relief roles, were then tossed into the combat and the Athletics mauled them for the winning runs.

Going into the eighth Hudlin had a 4 to 2 lead. Then Earl Brucker doubled and Hudlin was on his way to the showers. Zuber came in and was nicked for two base hits by Sam Chapman and Dario Lodigiana before Vitt could get him out of the game. With the winning run on second Galehouse took up the burden and Ace Parker promptly smacked him for a single to plate the counter.

Cleveland scored once in the first, added another in the sixth and two in the eighth. Before his blow-up Hudlin had allowed one run in the fourth and another in the fifth.

Widens Margin.

The defeat put the Tribe 1½ games behind the Yanks and left them an equal margin in front of the third place Boston club.

If temperamental Johnny Allen can work the stiffness out of his pitching arm he is scheduled to hurl today with Lynn Nelson opposing him.

WORK REDUCED 20-FOLD SINCE 1838 ON FARMS

Agricultural Experts Say Labor Saving Reaches Par With Industry.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Farm production has been mechanized to a degree comparable with industry, according to the department of agriculture.

Power machinery has largely replaced horses and mules during the past 20 years in most sections of the country, W. M. Hurst, of the bureau of agriculture engineering, said

Machinery development makes it possible for individual farmers to grow 100 acres of corn with the same amount of labor that his grandfather used in growing and harvesting five acres in 1838, R. B. Gray, of the same bureau, said.

Labor Saving Shown.

Recent investigations, Gray said, show that the modern farmer expends no more time or labor in producing 5,000 bushels of corn than did the farmer 100 years ago in producing 250 bushels.

In 1855, Gray said, the corn farmer used a walking plow, and planted and harvested by hand. He needed 33.6 hours of labor to grow one acre of corn. The amount of labor per acre was cut to 15 1 hours in 1885 and 6 9 in 1930, he said.

"Further improvements in machinery within the past eight years — including four-row planters and cultivators and general purpose tractors—make it possible now to produce an acre of corn with five hours of labor," Gray said.

The development of the general purpose tractor, Hurst said, "probably has affected American agriculture as much as, if not more than, the development of the reaper and steel plow of a century ago."

Tractors More Practical.

Only during the past 10 or 12 years, he said, have tractors been developed suitable for planting and cultivating row crops, for plowing, disking and belt work. Use of pneumatic tires has greatly increased the practicability of tractors for both farm work and road hauling.

"Adapting of field machinery to use with tractors," Hurst said, "constitutes the major recent development in what is generally known as farm implements. New machinery permits higher speed and increases effectiveness in turning under cover crops."

Mechanization has progressed further in the cultivation and harvesting of grain crops than in cotton. Labor in cotton fields will be reduced by half when a mechanical cotton picker becomes commercially available, it was said.

THEATER

PARAMOUNT'S fall shooting program is a full one, according to an announcement of their schedule, although there doesn't seem to be an abundance of first class pictures. There is Bing Crosby's "Paris Honeymoon" with Francis-ka Gaal; Ronald Colman and Basil Rathbone in "If I Were King"; Jack Benny in "Artists and Models Abroad," and "Zaza" with Claudette Colbert in the Mrs. Leslie Carter role. Other pictures scheduled are of less importance—and less interest. The new series of Hopalong Cassidy pictures will probably bring in as much profit as any of them. Among the others are "Escape From Yesterday" with Akim Tamiroff, Frances Farmer and Lief Erikson; Gail Patrick and Lloyd Nolan in "King of Alcatraz"; "King of Chinatown" with Anna May Wong (What? another series of "King" titles?" and the usual Westerns.

"Cowboy From Brooklyn."

Dick Powell's latest pictures mixes melody and mirth with a lot of hokum which should make good entertainment. The title sounds as if Powell might have gone "Western" on his fans, but the exact opposite is the truth. He is a crooner who can't get a break in the east, hitch hikes his way westward with a couple of pals, and is stranded at a dude rach. A tired theatrical manager thinks he has found a "natural" when he hears the new "cowboy" sing and rushes to sign a contract. One of the funnier complications is when the manager, to prove that his "singing cowboy" is the genuine article, advertises him as a rodeo star. Pat O'Brien as the producer, Priscilla Lane as the heart interest, Dick Foran, and Johnny Davis are in the cast. The picture opens at midnight matinee tonight at the Ohio.

"Shopworn Angel."

From Dana Burnet's old story, "Private Pettigrew's Girl," M-G-M has made "The Shopworn Angel," which the Madison offers the first half of the week, starting Sunday. It will be recalled that Nancy Carroll and Gary Cooper once made the picture, and this time it is done by Margaret Sullivan and James Stewart. This was one of the stirring and romantic stories that grew out of the World war, and concerns the young rookie who came out of the West, to be bowled over by a lady with a past. The lady not only has a definitely scarlet past but her present is pretty well tinted, too, but in the hectic days of the World war when everything but realities were cast overboard, these two managed their own happiness.

"I Married a Spy."

Two people caught in a web of espionage, who give up everything for something greater than themselves, are the characters around which the action of "I Married a Spy" revolves. It is a Majestic feature for Sunday and Monday. Neil Hamilton and Brigitte Horney have the leads. The story deals with a woman recognized as the most beautiful of European spies, who finds herself married to a young officer, and of the battle that was waged by them to keep her work from wrecking their lives. They are thrown together by the exigencies of war, marry and agree to part at the end of the war. The second feature is a re-issue of the picture, "Man's Castle," made several years ago with Loretta Young and Spencer Tracy.

"Call of the Yukon."

From James Oliver Curwood's novel "Swift Lightning," comes the story of "Call of The Yukon" which the Ritz offers for three days, starting Sunday. Richard Arlen, Beverly Roberts and Lyle Talbot are the featured players in this drama of the frozen North. In direct contrast with this is the second picture on the bill which is Edward G. Robinson's uproariously funny comedy, "A Slight Case of Murder." A combination of satire on all gangster pictures and farce comedy bordering on slap stick, the picture deals with the effort of a gangster to crash society, several "slight cases" of murder and the disposition of the bodies. Jane Bryan, Willard Parker, Ruth Donnelly and Allen Jenkins, with several other comedy characters make up the cast.

Kinseys Enter Second Week.

Mansfield has greeted the Madge Kinsey Players with enthusiasm the first week of their engagement here. The first two nights the large tent theater on West Second street was filled to capacity

The bill for next week includes "That Old Gang of Mine" for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday; the old melodrama "Tempest and Sunshine," Wednesday and Thursday; and "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em" on Friday and Saturday.

Tomorrow's show is a romantic comedy with George Colbert, Jack Irvin and Otto Imig as the three pals who befriend a pretty girl in distress. Ellen Douglas, leading lady of the company, plays the girl Madge Kinsey will be seen as the Irish landlady, and Dave Heminger as her husband. Jo-An Davis plays Mop-up-us. The specialty will be a military routine by the chorus.

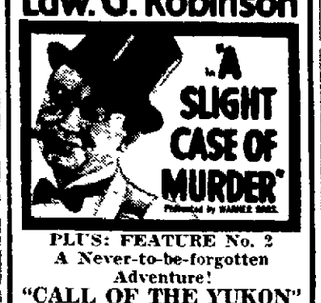

Tonight is the last performance of "She's My Baby," a comedy.

CYCLIST SUES

Asks $1,000 Damages as Result of Accident 2 Years Ago.

Action to collect $1,000 as the result of an automobile collision nearly two years ago was filed in municipal court today by Andrew Weisenburger, R. D. 4, Mansfield, against Paul F. Murphy, 150 Wood street.

In his petition, Weisenburger states that in July, 1936, while riding a motorcycle an Ashland road near Grace street, he collided with the defendant's automobile. Weisenburger claims that the accident was caused by negligence on the part of Murphy who made a left turn from the highway.

LIST SPURRED BY STEELS, UP 1 TO 4 POINTS

Estimates On Steel Production Indicate Further Sharp Gains Next Week.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Favorable steel news stimulated another strong stock market today, gains through the general list ranging from 1 to 4 points.

Trading was moderately active. virtually all groups participated in the extension of yesterday's rise, and many individual issues climbed into new high ground for the year.

Estmates on steel production indicated further sharp gains next week in the large steel making centers of Pittsburgh, Chicago and Birmingham.

Other business news was encouraging, including textile reports and continued improvement in the nation's retail sales.

Steels were among the strongest issues on the board. Motors, amusements, coppers, chemicals and packing shares also were in active demand. Gold stocks were about the only laggards.

The market opened moderately higher in quiet dealings, then gained momentum on the advance as leadership was rotated among pivotal sections. Best prices were reached in the final hour.

INSULL'S RULE CRASHED IN BITS

Once Head Of Huge Utility Empire, Fled Country To Escape Investigation.

from penury to great power, lost his possessions, rallied for a final fight against criminal trials and went down to defeat after a spectacular campaign which attracted world attention.

London was his Corsica, a $50-a-month job with Thomas Edison was his first commission in the commercial army, a public utilities system capitalized at $4,000,000,000 and touching 37 states his empire, the lean financial years of 1931 and 1932 his Moscow expedition and retirement in France his Elba.

From the latter he emerged to wage a stubborn, losing campaign against the extradition from Greece, meeting his Waterloo at Istanbul in an obscure Turkish law which brought him face to face with a St. Helena in the Chicago courts.

Lights and Shadows.

His career divided into sharp light and shadows. He came to the United States when he was 20 and went to work for Edison. Becoming the inventor's right hand man of business, he offered himself as president of the Chicago Edison company and was elected in 1892. In the next 40 years he built up his enormous utility interests, taking the younger brother, Martin J. Insull, up the ladder with him.

The next phase saw him fighting desperately to retain control of his huge companies, buying up stock at premium prices, borrowing $56,000,000 from banks to finance his operations, but seeing prices steadily shrink under the burden of the depression that followed the 1929 stock market collapse.

In June, 1932, he was stripped of his wealth and so were his wife, his brother and his son, Samuel Insull, jr. He had pensions amounting to $18,000 annually and sailed for Europe to rest. Martin Insull went to Canada.

On October 4, 1932, the Cook county grand jury at Chicago indicted the brothers on charges of embezzlement and larceny which alleged the abstraction of $514,942.74 from two financing companies of their system to support a marginal stock account of Martin. Capiases were issued for their arrests, Samuel being then in Paris and Martin in Orillia, Ont.

Long Extradition Fight Starts.

The elder Insull fled France, going to Italy for a brief pause, then taking refuge in Athens. He was detained by the authorities there but on Oct. 11 was released. On November 3 the United States applied formally for his extradition, basing its claims to the fugitive on the Illinois indictments. Insull assembled a battery of legal experts and on Dec. 28 won a decision that the alleged offenses were not extraditable under Greek law.

The United States countered on January 17, 1933, by cancelling Insull's passport, but Greece permitted him to stay on. Then the American government obtained his indictment on charges of using the mails to defraud and of committing fraudulent bankruptcy. Arrested again, Insull once more won a favorable Greek decision, the court freeing him on Oct. 31.

Still the long arm of the United States government was not paralyzed. On Nov. 23 it notified the Greek administration that means must be found for deporting Insull. Associations of former Greek citizens in America backed up the demand, the embassy kept after the Athens government and the cabinet finally held that the ministry of the interior could terminate the stay of any alien.

Insull's attorneys redoubled their efforts, but made no headway. He was told he must quit Greece on or before Jan. 31, 1934. He took to his bed, pleaded that forcible travel would aggravate a weak heart from which he had suffered for several years and won a respite until mid-February and later to March 15.

Flees In Disguise To Ship.

The midnight before that day he fled in disguise from his closely guarded apartment, boarded a chartered steamer, a dingy 2,500-tramp, the Maiotis, and disapeared at sea. Radio reached out and Greece ordered the Maiotis back to port. There its chartered status was established, and it was allowed to go.

For two weeks Insull dropped from sight. Close watch was kept at all Mediterranean ports and government after government announced Insull would be arrested if he landed.

On March 29 the ship appeared in the harbor of Istanbul. Capt. Mousouris, her master, notified the port authorities he wished to coal and provision and continue to Rumanian Black Sea ports with "one passenger."

Turkish action balked these plans. The Maitois was not permitted to clear.

Brothers' Ropes Fray Out.

All this happened on the very day that Martin Insull, loser in a long-drawn battle against extradition from Canada, was arraigned in a Chicago court and granted release on bail to await trial.

Turkey held Samuel's ship at anchor and dug up an old law which permitted the government to turn a fugitive over to any friendly power provided the crime for which he was sought was neither political nor military. On March 31 Insull refused a request that he come ashore voluntarily. The next day, Easter Sunday, the Maiotis was given permission to continue, but even while steam was being raised in her rusty boilers, Turkish police boarded her, seized Insull and took him before a court which decided he was accused of a "common" crime.

The Turkish government promptly notified the American ambassador that Insull was at American disposal and on April 2 he was transferred from a hotel where he had been under surveillance, to a detention prison.

"Regret to inform you that Sam is finished" was the word that went from his representatives abroad to his friends in the United States.

Goes to Trial.

Brought back to United States he went to trial with 16 associates in the federal court in Chicago on the mail fraud charge. After a lengthy hearing, fraught with details of Insull's frantic battle to keep his companies in operation, they were acquitted on Nov. 24, 1934.

Insull was subsequently freed in the bankruptcy case, too.

Later the state tried Insull and his brother on embezzlement charges. Again they were freed by a jury.

Through all the litigation, Insull maintained he had acted only in the interests of his companies.

Later, the companies he once headed voted him a pension of $18,000 a year—little more than cigaret money as compared to the wealth that he had once lavished.

He lived for a time in a modest Chicago apartment, but spent considerable time abroad.

Conviction on charges of violating the civil service laws carries automatic removal from office and provides for a fine of $50 to $500, or a six month jail sentence, or both.

Miss Fortune refused to comment on the charges and Gilbert could not be reached.

At Cleveland, Hubbell issued this statement:

"When Attorney General Duffy started this investigation I went into open court at Columbus before Judge Dana Reynolds of the Franklin county common pleas court and urged the judge to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate the solicitations and collections in Duffy's own office.

"The same day I wrote a letter to Duffy and Reynolds and offered to act as special prosecutor and to present to the grand jury evidence in support of my charges.

"Of course it is plain that Duffy's action in having me indicted is in retaliation for my effort as a citizen to have his office investigated. I didn't collect a nickel and I didn't pay a nickel."

INSULL DIES AT PARIS STATION

Fallen Utilities Magnate Collapses While Buying Railroad Ticket.

With her was a French woman friend who acted as her interpreter in talking with the hospital attaches.

One of the first questions asked of her was whether Insull had much money on his person when he collapsed. Mrs. Insull said he had "some cash" but was not certain whether he carried it all with him or had left it at his hotel.

Two hours elapsed between the time of Insull's death and his widow's arrival at the hospital. Authorities had difficulty in locating her to inform her of her husband's passing.

Mrs. Insull was so agitated that with the aid of her woman friend, she attempted to carry on a conversation in French with the undertaker, Bernard Lane, who is an Englishman.

As soon as the death certificate had been written, Insull was stripped and his body placed on a slab in the hospital morgue, where a dozen other corpses lay. His clothes were placed in a sealed container. Police and hospital authorities debated whether it would be necessary to perform an autopsy.

A representative of the United States embassy was sent to the hospital to check upon Insull's effects. It was understood burial would take place in London, where the one-time billionaire owns a home.

Insull arrived here on July 11 from Canada and joined his wife, who had been stopping at the Continental hotel for some time.

Death struck Insull as he was just beginning to enjoy life after years of hard work climaxed by disgrace, flight and exile.

"The poor man," Mrs. Insull was overheard to say to Lane, the undertaker.

"He had been suffering for twenty years. It was a shame he had to die now."

Lane said that burial in London was "practically certain." This will be in accordance with Mrs. Insull's wishes, he said.

It was not learned immediately how Insull's identity was first established.

Farmers In Windsor District Aroused As Engineer Says Suits Won't Halt Paving.

loss to the contractor.

"The bond in such a case might be as high as $50,000 or more," he said.

Avery Hale, one of the Mifflin township farmers who protested, said the farmers' major complaint was against the flooding of their lands as the result of the grading for the new highway or the improper location of tiles and drainage ditches.

Wierman expressed the belief that drainage difficulties could be worked out through slight changes in the right-of-way plans, which would not necessarily delay the highway construction, due to start about Aug. 1.

Three property owners—Willard Hale, James W. McMillen and Anton Reiser, jr.—have filed suits in common pleas court, asking the court to determine the compensation due them for land appropriated, and damage to crops. They refused offers of the highway department to settle for amounts ranging up to $84.

The Windsor project, including construction of 3.59 miles of route 42 between Mansfield and Ashland, was started four years ago and has repeatedly been delayed because of right-of-way disputes and failure to obtain federal funds for the work.

The highway department recently accepted bids on the paving, with the W. H. Ringwald and Sons company of Chillicothe submitting the low bid.

The Weather Man Never Heard of Crop Control, County Farmers Suffer

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IT IS INTERESTING to note in the "Five Years Ago" that wheat was bringing the farmer $1.23 cents a bushel, with a tremendous crop throughout the United States and a small one in Canada. That was before the AAA. This year it is predicted that wheat will drop to 60 cents and what with frost damage and the president's crop control program there will be little more than half a normal crop in Richland county.

The great wheat growing states report bumper crops this year and in order to keep prices up, the AAA will loan farmers money if they will hold up their surplus until it is needed and the price is right. That is, the department will loan money on unmarketed wheat to farmers who cut their wheat acreage this year in compliance with federal regulations and whose wheat comes up to specifications.

But for the Richland county farmer who has only half a crop because of the late frosts, and those everywhere whose product has been damaged by weather conditions, it will be just another "bad year."

If you've an ounce of humor there's a giggle in the situation. The one person the president has encountered that is absolutely unresponsive to his dynamic charm and wide, expansive smile is—the Weather Man.

There are still late frosts and summer droughts regardless of his compelling personality.

WHEN a group of Old Line Democrats gathered at a local soda dispensory this week it was the consensus of opinion that the president made a political mistake when he went on his present barn storming tour for the purpose of interfering in state politics.

But he seems to have slipped a bit in judgment as well as good taste. He was invited to Marietta to speak at an important historical event—and he took advantage of it to give Marietta's Favorite Son a kick in the pants.

George White has always stacked up pretty well in his home town, with both political parties, and now he's a candidate in the primaries for nomination as United States senator. And as a guest of the people of the southern part of the state, the president told them he would be very happy to have them support White's opponent—from the northern part of the state.

Even a ward heeler would have known better than that.

BUT the best show in the political arena is right here in Ohio with our own beloved and highly respected governor giving us a better show that the Marx Brothers ever thought of.

A national political writer said this week that Ohio was looked upon as the poorest governed state in the union and Gov. Davey as the worst governor. What does he mean? I'll bet there isn't another state in which the citizens have as much fun as we do.

The funniest act so far—outside of carrying his office carpet around with him—was the free-for-all fight at Fremont the other night. Can't you just see that dapper, big-eyed little guy yelling invectives at his enemies and then suddenly remembering that he is governor of Ohio and demanding to know why the hell he isn't respected as such?

UTTERLY out of place in that farce comedy was Charles Sawyer, candidate opposing Davey. For he bears the unmistakable marks of a gentleman, a thinker and an executive. And he behaved with fine sportsmanship under trying circumstances the other night, exemplifying Kipling's "If"—"If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs."

Believe me, right now Ohio could do with a governor who can keep his head.

IF YOU'RE one of those "Gone With The Wind" fans who have been fretting about Norma Shearer playing Scarlett, you might voice your opinion to the Selznick studio, Hollywood. The company already has received so many wails and indignant outbursts about the selection that officials are disturbed. It may even influence Miss Shearer not to accept the assignment.

Miss Shearer is a very fine actress—but not a magician. If Selznick has already spent, as he says he has, $200,000 in his efforts to find a suitable Scarlett, then he should keep right on spending.

A FINE argument developed in the office yesterday when I asked in an off-hand manner the location of No. 2 fire station with relation to the three railroad tracks that cross North Main street, the Ohio Brass buildings, and the reservoir. Before the argument was over there had been three cash bets made and three reporters, three editors and two Prominent Citizens who came in, joined in the argument, each with a different idea. And two of us finally took a car and went down to settle it.

What I had really started out to say in the first place was that the fire station is probably the only one in the world that is hemmed in by two major railroads and that the other night when our car was between the two, with a train standing on both tracks, I wondered what the heck would happen if a fire call came in to No. 2. And whether this believe-it-or-not situation affects the insurance rate for residents in the north end of town?

Bet eight out of ten of you never noticed it before, now did you?

U.S. Launches Probe In Kentucky Campaign

OPENS INQUIRY IN SPENDING OF PUBLIC FUNDS

Charges Arising From Heated Barkley-Chandler Battle To Get Airing.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate campaign expenditures committee undertook today to determine the truth of charges that public funds were being misused in the heated Kentucky primary contest between Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley and Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler.

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex), asserting the committee would make a thorough investigation, said the inquiry would be completed before the Democratic primary Aug. 6 and would cover "the entire situation there."

Relief To Be Probed.

Sheppard's statement was accepted generally as meaning the committee would include in its investigation the handling of relief funds, disregarding the earlier inquiry by the Works Progress administration. After the WPA inquiry, Administrator Harry Hopkins said only two minor instances of improper political activity by WPA employes were disclosed.

The committee decided on the Kentucky investigation yesterday on its own initiative. At the same time it voted to inquire into charges of an undisclosed nature regarding the Pennsylvania senatorial campaign.

It disclosed, too, that an investigation already was underway in Tennessee, but committee members would not discuss what prompted it.

Senator Berry (D-Tenn) is opposed for renomination by a field cludes Tom Stewart, Winchester; J. Ridley Mitchell, Cookeville; John R. Neal, Knoxville, and Edward W. Carmack, Murfreesboro.

Sheppard said there had been complaints from several individuals about the Pennsylvania campaign and that some involved the primary held May 17. He did not disclose their nature.

VOTES SUPPORT

Woodland P.T.A. Joins Drive To Boost School Bonds.

Fifty members of the Woodland P. T. A. voted unanimous support last night for the proposal to build two new schools in Mansfield, and launched a house-to-house canvass to obtain support for the $550,000 school building bond issue, to go on the Aug. 9 primary ballot.

They saw motion pictures which compared Hedges and John Simpson buildings with new and modern schools, explained by Superintendent of Schools W. L. Miller, and heard a short talk by H. W. Arlin, school board member.

Arlin urged that Mansfield should be more concerned with the welfare of its boys and girls than with the lowness of its tax rate, and asserted that there were conditions in the city's schools that would not be tolerated in any factory in the city.

Last night's meeting was the second of a series to be held at city school buildings on behalf of the school bond issue. The third will be held at Bushnell school at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

40 JAILED IN RACE RIOTING

Pittsburgh Police Restore Peace After Second Night Of Wild Disorders.

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH—Police restored order early today in Pittsburgh's turbulent northside after a second wild night of street rioting between races that resulted in the wounding by gunfire of a detective and a colored man and the arrest of at least 40 persons.

Those under arrest were held for hearings today on charges of inciting to riot.

In another outbreak in the northside's west park—where police say the ill feeling between the races arose during the summer over use of recreational facilities—one man's skull was fractured.

City Detective Verner Wagner, 40, was shot in a leg as he and other detectives leaped from a police scout car to break up a mob of both races. Wounded in the same melee was James Lee Dixon, 21, who was shot in both legs.

The smoldering ill feeling broke out Wednesday night in sporadic street fights. Thursday night roving bands of youths roamed the district and in numerous clashes eight were injured and 17 arrested.

There was no rioting Wednesday night, police reporting only occasional street fights.

PRISON PLACED UNDER MARTIAL LAW TO PREVENT MASS ESCAPES

(By United Press)

FLORENCE, Ariz. — National guardsmen took command of the state prison today to halt in unparalleled series of escapes resulting from crowded conditions and a lack of funds with which to employ an adequate number of guards.

A company of infantry, equipped with machine guns, rifles, and gas bombs, arrived. It was indicated that it would immediately build a stockade near the prison in which to herd convicts who had been permitted to sleep outside the walls because there wasn't enough room for them inside.

Twenty convicts had escaped in the last six weeks: five escaped Thursday. In placing the prison under martial law, Gov. R. C. Stanford said that "escape" was not the word with which to describe the method of departing of the mission convicts. Because most of the guards were out looking for convicts who had "escaped" before, they had simply walked away.

The commanding officer of the regiment was placed in charge of the prison by the governor's decree, superceding Warden John C. Eager who had informed the governor that there was "a situation which I can no longer control."

The prison has a population of 739, but only 16 guards. Eager said its physical confines and equipment were adequate for less than half its number of inmates. For weeks 200 trusties—men with good records and men serving short terms—have been sleeping unguarded outside the walls.

Eager's appeal to the governor said that chaos had ruled at the prison after recent escapes.

MRS. STONE DIES

Former Mansfielder, 92, To Be Buried Here Monday.

Mrs. Naomi Stone, 92, a former resident of Mansfield, died in White Cross hospital, Columbus, today after a lingering illness. Mrs. Stone was born in Washington township, May 25, 1846, the daughter of John and Sarah Schlosser McFarland, pioneer Richland county residents.

She was the oldest member of the First Congregational church of Mansfield and was a member of the Women's relief corps.

Mrs. Stone, the widow of John Stone, made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Clarence A. Barnes in Columbus for several years. The survivors include a son, Herbert of Mansfield; two daughters, Mrs. Thomas McCoy of Seville and Mrs. Barnes, eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home at 2 p. m. Monday with Rev. Peter Young officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery. The body will be at the funeral home.

Walter L. Beckley, who weighs around 200 pounds, is spending all his leisure time these days picking flowers and feeding the birds lettuce with a bit of growling on the side. His Missus is at the lake and Walt's in full charge of household responsibilities. "I wouldn't mind taking care of the dog," he admits, "but picking the flowers gets me down. I'm just not a flower-picker. Then I have to feed the fish and give the bird a leaf of lettuce every day. I've cooked up a scheme of revenge, though. I'm going to sleep in every bed in the house—and leave 'em all unmade until she comes home."

If there is anything to the old superstition about St. Swithin's day, then we are in for a "dry spell." Yesterday was the anniversary of the saint who was buried under the eaves of Westminster Abbey, and if it rains on that day, July 15, then it will rain for 40 days thereafter—according to the legend. But if it doesn't rain on St. Swithin's day you can look for very little rain in the next 40 days.

The series of radio programs saluting northern Ohio cities, including Mansfield, will originate from Richland county today when Shelby is honored. Station WGAR, Cleveland, is conducting the broadcasts. The program is scheduled for 6:30 p. m., and will include Chief of Police LeRoy Coffey, former Mansfielder, as a speaker. Musical entertainment also will be provided by Shelby organization. The date for the Mansfield broadcast has not been set.

The other day he sent one of his own hand-written postal card messages to R. N. McMichael, editor of the Tri-Forks Press, at Lucas. A day or so later the Mansfield clergyman got the card back with an accompanying note: "Since the Tri-Forks Press has no deciphering or decoding expert on its staff, I am returning your card with the request that you furnish us with a translation."

DAVEY'S FOE BLASTS COST OF 'HOT-MIX'

Road Material Not Economical, Says Candidate; Politics In Department Hit.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Charles Sawyer, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, was pledged today to appointment of a bi-partisan commission to direct highway affairs, if elected.

The commission, which would be appointed by the governor, would be empowered to select a highway engineer to be chief executive officer of the highway department, Sawyer said in his weekly political broadcast last night.

Referring to the state's "hot mix" highway paving program, Sawyer said, "in my judgment there is no glory and very little that is lasting in that program."

Cites Cost Example.

"There are so many things wrong with it that it is difficult to know which ones to dwell upon," he said. "I might mention that in 1937, seventy three miles of highway were resurfaced with T-135 for $991,000 and that eighty eight miles were resurfaced and widened for $1,100,000. Simple division shows that the cost per mile of resurfacing was greater than the cost for resurfacing and widening, which doesn't make sense."

He promised that competent state employes would not lose their jobs if he should be elected governor.

"If highway department employes spent less time on securing signatures they might have time to fix fences, build secondary roads, and things they are employed to do," Sawyer added.

He pledged that, if elected, he would permit nobody doing business with the highway department "to pay one dime to anybody to get that business."

He expressed the opinion that "surfacing old roads with hot mix is not economical."

"It is senseless to say that a veneer of hot mix will transform a worn-out highway into a thoroughfare that will add glory to the state of Ohio. In fact it will add only high maintenance costs in the future."

He said the highway department must be divorced from politics, charging that it is now "shot through from end to end with a most venal kind of politics."

GEN. JOHNSON:

Oklahoma Vote Analysis Shows Thomas Victor on 34½ Per Cent of Ballots

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—This column threw one into the bleachers in predicting that Gomer Smith would beat Senator Elmer Thomas in the Oklahoma primaries. It is true that of 443,000 Oklahoma Democrats, 65½ per cent of them didn't want Elmer in spite of Mr. Roosevelt's pat on the silvery head of his "old friend."

But only about 33½ per cent wanted Gomer. It was a three-way race and Oklahoma doesn't have any run-off primary any more. Elmer is a minority choice but he is the candidate.

His contributions to statecraft have been a proposal to confiscate 200 billions of private property and divide it up and use paper wampum or hokum for money. That need alarm no one because Elmer really isn't Oklahoma's senior representative in Oklahoma. He will vote for whatever the administration tells him.

That is all right too if Oklahoma wants to surrender more of her statehood to Washington. Oklahoma hasn't said that. On the contrary, 65½ per cent of her Democrats declined to say that.

The contest for governor didn't add any laurels to this column's reputation for political prophecy, either. It was close. WPA had its own candidate—Key—and he got 150,000. The old sourdough, whom I thought would win, Alfalfa Bill Murray, polled 127,000. The plum fell, under 159,000 votes, to Leon Phillips, who will be a good governor. But here again is a minority choice. Only 34 per cent of the Democrats yearned for Leon.

Altogether, this Oklahoma primary didn't indicate that Mr. Roosevelt's intervention had any great effect in any direction. He cooed at Elmer but he also wooed Gov. Marland, who was hopelessly licked.

It is true that he kicked Alfalfa Bill Murray in the shins, but he didn't indicate any preference for governor, and Gen. Key, the WPA candidate, was beaten.

As a matter of fact, except for Alfalfa Bill, the whole slate was radical. None answered the president's definition of a "conservative." No effect was marked enough to prove that the administration can dictate candidates to the states.

There was really no contest in Florida where Senator Pepper was a certainty when Jim said we wanted him to win. The attempt didn't work in Iowa and Indiana and it didn't mean much in Oklahoma. It was abandoned in Colorado and Nevada. Beginning with such a slashing start in Kentucky, where the president actually advised the election of Senator Barkley and the defeat of Harry Chandler, it has progressively thinned out as the train traveled west.

That is all to the good. The trip, originally planned as a purging expedition—has again proved not only the president's great personal popularity, but also his sharp sense of popular opinion and his prompt acceptance of it as a guide to his actions.
